

Interactions in the World Around Us

Process and Procedures

Pages 766-767

Date

Page #

1a. What type of interactions did you see in which only one organism seemed to benefit?

1b. What type of interactions seemed to benefit all organisms?

1c. Give examples of how odor, taste and sound can lead to interactions that either attract or repel other organisms.

1d. Name at least five living and three nonliving components that are part of the area you observed.

3. Write a definition for the term ecosystem.

8. Add observations after watching the video.

9. Add observations after reading the scenario,
“Early Morning
Reflections.

Interactions Among Organisms
One organism benefits and the other organism is harmd	Both organisms benefit	Both organisms are harmd

Interactions in the World Around Us

Analysis

Date

Page 769

Page

1. Do you think that humans have more or less influence on the environment than other organisms have? Explain.

2. Do you think that humans have a responsibility to monitor how we influence the environment? Explain.